Review: An informative go-to site for people who use drugs, particularly those who include ice or other amphetamines in their mix. There are lots of practical harm reduction and prevention tips, including a couple of sections which are of particular interest to people who relate to GLBTIQ. There is realistic safe partying, safe injecting and safer sex information to aid in the prevention of overdoses and the transmission of infectious diseases.

Review: Peak body providing comprehensive peer support for people who use drugs, their families, carers and peers. The site provides extensive harm reduction education, safe injecting advice, practical support, information and advocacy. The e-news tackles current issues such as pharmacotherapy, effects of using popular illicit substances, without stigma or bias allowing for maximum health promotion and harm reduction adherence. Demonstrates exceptional empathy for people juggling health issues with their dependence on illicit drugs. Although membership is open to NSW individuals and organisations, the policy and harm reduction materials have global relevance.
