USA Creator: Harvard Medical School - Cambridge Health Alliance - BASIS Last reviewed: 28/08/2018

Review: An excellent site for teachers, students or social health professionals looking for up-to-date research and debate on issues related to tobacco. This site provides an online collection of graduate papers, and published and unpublished research. The site has particularly good articles related to addiction and dependence challenges related to the use of tobacco; economics impacts of smoking on health and socioeconomic status; and the need for the prevention of uptake of tobacco in children and adolescents.

Review: An excellent resource created by and for the GLBTIQ community and, in particular, for gay men who are HIV positive and using (or thinking of using) crystal methamphetamine (ICE). It's a self-help, harm reduction resource to keep yourself and any partners who are not HIV positive safe. Embedded is a fabulous e-book which provides non-judgemental information about the risks and perceived benefits of using 'TINA'. Recommended also for community workers or health professionals working with people who use drugs, in prevention from the misuse of illicit substances, or the prevention of infectious diseases.
