Review: A flexible service for young people 13-19 who want to take charge of their alcohol or other drug use. The individual counselling and peer support alternative programs provide structure, skills and strategies for harm reduction and healthier lifestyle choices. The services aim to support clients to avoid long-term addiction, poor health, homelessness, disengagement or unemployment. Support is also available for the families of the young people. NOTE: This is a review of the provider's website and the information on it, not a review of the quality of their services.

Whitelion Last reviewed: 29/12/2017

Review: Socially sensitive programs targeting at-risk, vulnerable, disadvantaged youth with an overall aim to develop life, work and wellbeing skills. The national organisation, with state-based services, offers a range of prevention, early intervention and treatment options including outreach, mentoring, peer support, employment and education, seminars and professional development. Crisis support is available for youth and their families with services such as housing, health, drug and alcohol programs, family counselling, legal services, re-engagement back into school, and assisting young people to find suitable workplace options. Although varying from state-to-state, the non-profit organisation provides support in both metropolitan and rural and remote communities.

Australia, NSW Creator: The Wayside Chapel

Last reviewed: 02/10/2018

Review: An extensive range of health, welfare and recreational programs and services for people marginalised by homelessness, mental health issues and substance abuse. Wayside provides services in Kings Cross and Bondi Beach. Included are community services centres, youth spaces, mental health programs, community cafes, an Aboriginal project, access to counselling, outreach and referrals, plus affordable food options and ablution facilities. The Chapel's ethos of unconditional support provides a safe refuge for at-risk individuals including consumers with addiction, health, financial challenges or at-risk of being homeless.
