Review: Programs for people who use drugs and are looking for residential or community-based treatment options. The Bridge Program model of recovery is a purposeful, whole of life, person-centred, coordinated care approach that combines a number of key elements into an integrated, evidence-informed recovery program. Participants in the state-based programs are supported with assessment, detox, withdrawal, referrals, harm reduction and aftercare. Families are encouraged to be involved. Centres based in a number of states. NOTE: This is a review of the provider's website and information on it, not a review of the quality of their services.

Review: Rehab, court support, residential treatment, information and family support for people who use drugs or misuse alcohol and are experiencing addiction issues. Self-assessment tests and self-referral applications are available online. Medium to long-term support provided. Urban-based residential treatment and accommodation are key components of the intervention protocols promoted by the services. The organisation is committed to a continuum of care and acknowledges that addiction and dependency are a brain disease rather than merely a behavioural choice. NOTE: This is a review of the provider's website and the information on it, not a review of the quality of their services.
